WEB PAGE DESIGN: DEVELOPING COGNITION

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Constructivist Approaches to Technology and Literacy Education in the 21st Century | This study explored the cognitive and metacognitive strategies that high school students used to design and develop pages for the World Wide Web. The research was conducted in a natural classroom setting by the teacher-researcher who used participant observation, a prior knowledge survey, student journals, interviews, and student presentations to replicate data from different sources. Data analysis was based on a...
