Excerpt from How to Join the Circus and Gymnasium: The Celebrated Circus and Pantomime Clown The first circus in the United States was run in 1780 by a man named Rickets. Definite information as to its organization is now of course unattainable, but if reproduced at this day, and put in contrast with the enormous circuses now competing for public favor, it would doubtless be considered a very small affair. Such as it was, however, Gen. Washington and his staff patronized its performances in Philadelphia, and it was deemed quite a high-toned amusement for that city in 1780. Two or three years later a Frenchman named Boschard was associated in management with Rickets, and when the latter died the enterprising Gaul for some time had the business all to himself. His success encouraged rivals, and several circus companies sprang up during the latter part of the last and the beginning of the present century. It is very doubtful, however, about the publisher.
