Accountability Office, 2008 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)232328715 Subject: United States -- Officials and employees -- Statistics. Excerpt: . . . eligible for retirement over the next 10 years. SBA, like most federal agencies, will face these challenges. Rather than simply recreating the existing organization, as we have previously reported, effective succession planning and management, linked to the strategic human capital plan, can help an organization become what it needs to be. Leading organizations go beyond a replacement approach that focuses on identifying particular individuals as possible successors for specific top-ranking positions. Rather, they typically engage in broad, integrated succession planning and management efforts that focus on strengthening both current and future capacity, anticipating the need for leaders and other key employees with the necessary competencies to successfully meet the complex challenges of the 21st century. 18 In an October 2007 report, the SBA Inspector General identified effective succession planning as a management challenge for SBA and found that the agency lacked effective human capital strategies needed to enable SBA to successfully carry out its mission and become a high performing organization. In its fiscal year 2007 annual performance report, SBA acknowledged that, among other actions, it needed to develop a more systematic workforce planning process and to better align its human capital plans, strategies, and systems to achieve organizational effectiveness and accomplish its mission. In fiscal year 2007, SBA reported achieving such outcomes as completing an occupational skills gap analysis 19 and revising its SES Candidate Development Program. SBA also identified strategies for fiscal years 2008 and 2009 to further its progress in strategic human capital management. In addition, succession planning is tied to the federal governments opportunity...
