Excerpt: .my sovereign liege, I ought not to be displeased with that which gives you pleasure. This answer so assuaged the mind of the raging monarch, that, for the remainder of his life, he held no one in greater estimation than this young man; mitigating the offence of this tyrannical deed against the father by royal solicitude for the son. In expiation of this crime, a monastery, which was built on this spot by Elfthrida, is inhabited by a large congregation of nuns. See Dr. Giles s translation of Malmsbury s Chronicle. Bohn s Edition. London, 1847; pp. 159-60. Page 18. How Coventry was-made free, c. This popular legend does not seem to have the slightest historical foundation. William of Malmsbury, and other church historians, relate the munificent gifts of Leofric and his wife Godifa, such as their founding monasteries at Coventry and elsewhere, but...
